comments:

I had been taking Xenadrine for about 2weeks when I increased the capsules to two a day. I then noticed a strange sensation in my brain, a buzzing or tremors if you will, which kept me up for days on end. It almost drove me insane and I even ended up in emergency one day. Eliminating everything else and stopping the Xenadrine then starting it up again made it a certainty that Xenadrine is behind these strange sensations in my head. To this day, the complete right side of my head feels "numb". I now believe this product to be very dangerous and will have my doctor investigate this further.
